Disabled protesters make stand

Demonstrators crawl up Capitol steps

By WILLIAM M. WELCH
Associated Press Writer

WASHINGTON (AP)—Using their arms or whatever movement they could, dozens of people crawled out of their wheelchairs and up the steps of the U.S. Capitol to dramatize their demand for rights for people with disabilities.

"I'll take all night if I have to," said the youngest, 8-year-old Jennifer Keenan of Denver, as she pulled her small body up the steps.

"Come on Jenny, you're almost there," said Michael Winter of Berkeley, Calif., who was making his own difficult journey up the 23 stone steps of the Capitol's West Front.

They were among 60 or so people who put on the demonstration Monday following a rally at the base of the Capitol steps by about 1,000 people supporting legislation to extend rights to people with disabilities.

"We're not asking for any favors," said I. King Jordan, president of Gallaudet University and the first deaf person to hold that position at the school for people with impaired hearing. "We're simply asking the same rights and equality any other American has."

The focus of the protest was the Americans with Disabilities Act, which passed the Senate last year but has bogged down in the House, despite widespread predictions of its ultimate passage.

The measure would outlaw discrimination based on physical or mental disability in employment, access to buildings, use of the telephone system, use of public and private transportation and in other uses. The Capitol building has ramps for wheelchair access to two of its entrances and ramps and elevators inside to enable people confined to wheelchairs to get around.

"What we did for civil rights in the '60s, we forgot to do for people with disabilities," said Rep. Patricia Schroeder, D-Colo.

Although the bill is supported by the Bush administration and congressional leaders, some have begun questioning the administration's commitment in recent weeks. White House spokesman Martin Fitzwater denied the support was slipping and said the administration was negotiating with key members of Congress.

"We do support the legislation," Fitzwater said. "We're very supportive of their rights and their cause. President Bush has spoken out on that in the past."

Jennifer Keenan, a second-grader, began crawling up the Capitol steps as soon as the speech ended.

Her mother, Cynthia Keenan, said Jennifer suffers from cerebral palsy and the girl decided to crawl the steps herself after joining the group Americans Disabled for Accessible Public Transit, or ADAPT.

A friend of hers in that group, 5-year-old Kessy Perkins of Denver, died in January. "I'm doing it for Kessy," Jennifer said as she reached the top.

"I'm proud of her," her mother said. "That was hard work."

A group of handicapped people crawl up the U.S. Capitol steps Monday to draw support for a bill that would extend civil rights to disabled persons.

Title II of the ADA

Municipal Obligations

- 5 Administrative Requirements
  - Designate a responsible employee
    - Someone with sufficient authority to make decisions and take action
    - Often referred to as “ADA Coordinator”
  - Grievance Procedure
    - Establish and publicize a procedure for addressing complaints regarding ADA Compliance

Title II of the ADA

Municipal Obligations

- 5 Administrative Requirements
  - Notice to the Public
    - Public statement of ADA Compliance to be made available across multiple platforms (print, auditory, website, etc.)
  - Conduct a self-evaluation
    - An assessment of all programs and services to identify any barriers to participation by people with disabilities
    - Required by all entities, regardless of size

Title II of the ADA

Municipal Obligations

- 5 Administrative Requirements

- Develop a Transition Plan

- A plan that identifies the architectural barriers that impact access to programs and activities offered by a public entity
    - Only required for entities with 50 or more employees

*Originally required to be completed by July 26, 1992 and barriers to be removed by July 26, 1995

Title II of the ADA

Potential Liabilities for Non-Compliance

- Possibility of harsher mandates from litigation
- Possibility of “bad press”
- Possibility of becoming a DOJ Project Civic Access “subject”
- Subject to private lawsuits and settlement agreements
  - More likelihood of advocates’ success if no evidence of “good faith effort”
  - Courts or settlement agreement can make you do more than would otherwise have been required
- Someone else could control and dictate the process, determine what financial resources you will need to allocate and dictate the schedule for compliance

Requirements of an ADA Self-Evaluation & Transition Plan

What Are Programs, Services or Activities?

MODULE
Pilot

Broadly defined:

For purposes of the self-evaluation and transition plan, a “program” is a service or activity with a single purpose. It is an activity undertaken by a department that affords benefits, information, opportunities or activities to one or more members of the public.

Examples of Programs

Examples:

- Library/parks and recreation/education
- Voting/elections
- Meetings, hearings, special events
- Police protection/Emergency
- Web based information and publications
- Social services
- Payment of fines, taxes, assessments
- Sidewalks/public rights of way
- Includes programs, services, and activities carried out by contractors or grantees on behalf of the local government

Base Requirements of a Self-Evaluation

- Examine the entities programs, services, activities including the use of information technology to identify any barriers for persons with disabilities;
- Evaluate how people with disabilities receive benefits and services and participate in programs and activities to identify any policies or practices that may be discriminatory;
- Develop a set of priority-driven recommendations to ensure that all programs, services, and activities are accessible to people with disabilities

Areas to Examine in a Self-Evaluation

- Participation requirements (initial and continuing)
- Tests/qualification requirements
- Participation policies and practices that may discriminate
- Existence of separate programs/services
- Effective communication
- Infrastructure (transportation, etc.)
- Emergency preparedness
- Use of outside entities and their compliance (vendors, contractors, grantees)
- Furniture, equipment, purchasing procedures
- Web based information/services (kiosks, apps, etc.)

Case Example of a Program to Evaluate

Example: Public Hearing

- Assume facts:
  - Meetings are held to conduct city business and communicate with residents of the city or recipients of a specific program
  - May be held in-person or remote
  - Some are held on regular basis, some are responsive to urgent situations (fiscal issues, emergency, etc.)
- Include each type of meeting that may be held in your assessment
- Determine:
  - Are all facilities where meetings are held accessible?
  - Is notice made to the public about how to request accommodations to participate?
  - Are all materials and announcements associated with the meeting accessible?
  - Do people with disabilities have an equal opportunity to participate?

Base Requirements of a Transition Plan

- Conduct a review of all facilities where a covered entities programs, services or activities are carried out
- Develop a list of the physical barriers that limit the accessibility of programs, activities, or services
- Identify the methods to remove the barriers and make the facilities accessible
- Establishment of a schedule to get the work completed seeking input from the public regarding priorities
- Identification of the responsible official(s) for the plan's implementation
- Periodic review of progress made on the plan

Example of a Facility to Evaluate

Example: City Hall

- Assume facts:
  - The building is open to the public on a regular basis
  - Residents can come to City Hall to carry out a variety of activities including paying bills, attending meetings, applying for services/benefits and meeting with leadership
  - A public parking lot serves the building
  - Restrooms are open to the public
- Determine all areas where the public has access:
  - Identify any physical barriers that impede access to areas where the public is served
    - Evaluate against the 2010 ADA Standards for Accessibility and the Illinois Accessibility Code
  - Identify any physical barriers that may impede an employee with a disability (identify areas that may only be used by employees)
